

“Logical, Organized Messaging Center!”

SimpleVoiceCenter is a complete voice messaging system with multiple voicemail boxes, greetings and levels. Users can develop their own box structure including extension numbers, logic tree and the ability to turn on or off messages in each box. The main greeting box is used to introduce the customer to the messaging system by informing them about which box(es) they will want to go to in order to find the information they are seeking. When the customer has heard the main greeting, they simply select the box number for the next section of information that they want to hear.

SimpleVoiceCenter also comes with an intelligent online interface for account management. Users can download or even publish their messages through RSS feeds and podcasts. SimpleVoiceCenter is a great way to keep information about products, services or happenings organized and easily accessible.
